Activity

Ice Breaker

On a piece of paper, describe your best experience or day on this job.

Throw your piece into a container with the others of the group, then choose a different one.

Match each group member to what he or she wrote on the piece of paper.

Why was this such a good day or experience?

Something to Think About

How can you create more days or experiences like this one?

Count the check marks in each column and place the total at the bottom. The column with the most checks indicates your primary learning style.

My primary learning style is _____

Succeeding in the Workplace

- Defining Success
- Skills for Success
- Choosing to Succeed
- Assessing Workplace Skills
- Assessing the Work Environment

Key Term

Defining Success

What does success in the workplace mean to you?

How would your supervisor describe a successful employee?

Does that description fit you? Why or why not?

Whose definition of your success is more important — yours or your supervisor's?

Write a new definition of success combining your first definition plus a supervisor's definition.

Activity

Skills for Success

Generate a list of skills an employee needs to succeed on the job.

With a partner, choose one of the above and create a plan (specific tasks) for gaining that particular skill.

Skill _____

Plan

What you're going to do _____

How you're going to do it _____

Activity

Assessing Workplace Skills

Check the three most important skills for succeeding in the workplace.

Activity

Assessing the Work Environment

List some signals that tell you what kind of day you are going to have.

Suggestions: boss's mood, morning events, child sick ...

Activity

As a group, choose two of the most challenging signals and create a list of ways to respond to these challenges.

Communicating on the Job

- Analyzing Your Job
- Your Customers
- Three Behavior Choices for Working with Customers

Activity

Analyzing Your Job

Starting Your Shift

Two volunteers role play a supervisor and an employee who just arrived at work.
(The scene could be a successful interaction or an unsuccessful interaction.)

Questions for Observers

- Was the interaction successful or unsuccessful?
- What did you notice about the supervisor? (Tone of voice, body language, etc.)
- How did the supervisor convey information? (Tell, show, or use hands-on examples)
- What did you notice about the employee? (Tone of voice, body language, etc.)
- What choices did the employee make?
- What choices could the employee have made?

On an average workday, I do the following

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

Activity

Who Depends on You?

Why is your department important to the hospital?

Note Taking

Your Customers

What is a customer? (Think about yourself as a customer.)

Which customers are internal? _____

Which customers are external? _____

Which is the more difficult to deal with? Why?

Key Term

Three Behavior Choices for Working with Customers

Give examples of how someone acts with a customer that would be...

Aggressive

Passive

Assertive

Key Term

Highlight key words in the definitions below.

Aggressive behavior is standing up for your rights but expressing yourself in a way that violates the rights of others, or shows them no respect. Aggression may include sarcasm, humiliating insults, intimidating or overpowering the other person in order to win or dominate.

Passive behavior is giving in to other people's requests, demands or feelings without regard to what you want or how you feel. Passive behavior is based on the belief that other people's feelings, desires, and opinions are more important or correct than yours. You may think that you will experience negative consequences if you express your feelings, opinions or desires; you wish to avoid conflict at all costs. Passive behavior is often expressed by silence.

Assertive behavior is asking for what you want, stating your opinion, or expressing your feelings in direct and honest ways that show your respect for yourself and others. Assertion is a way of standing up for your rights, yet not violating the rights of others.

Key Term

Resolving Conflict Activity

Create examples of the following.

- _____ I lose/You lose
- _____ I win/You lose
- _____ I lose/You win
- _____ I win/You win

Which of the four is most common?

Which would improve customer service?

Label each of the four as aggressive, passive, assertive.

Key Term

Tips for Assertive Behavior

- Ask for what you want: “I need/want”
- State your thought or opinion: “I think”
- Express your feelings honestly: “I feel”
- Show respect for yourself and others.
- Stand up for your rights, not violating the other’s rights.
- Strive for a win-win solution.

Your Learning Style and Assertive Behavior

What is your learning style?

How can being assertive and using your learning style help you get information?

Communicating with Your Boss

- Nonverbal Communication
- Listening
- Following Directions
- Workplace Application of Skills

Key Term

Verbal Communication — Three Techniques

I-Messages vs You-Messages

Is there a problem with the following statement? “You need to sign this.”

How do people typically react when we start sentences with “you”?

Highlight the key words in the definitions.

You-Messages—blame, judge, evaluate, label, hurt other’s feelings, damage relationships, put others on the defensive, diminish other’s self-esteem, and damage the good feelings that are present in a relationship.

I-Messages—tell another person that you have important needs, ask for cooperation, and is a direct and honest statement of what you want.

I-Message Example

I need/want you to sign this because the supply order has to be faxed by noon.

Activity

With a partner, write a you-message.
Exchange the you-message with another group.
Change the you-message into an I-message.

You-message

I-message

I need/want _____

because _____

How will this affect communication in your department?

In your home?

Activity

Another Type of I-Message

I feel ... (state a feeling word — mad, sad, glad, scared)

When you ... (state the irritating behavior)

Because ... (state what I need or want)

List some words that describe feelings.

Other I-Message Examples

I feel irritated

When you put me down

Because I want to be respected.

I feel angry

When you don't finish your work

Because I need your cooperation.

Which I-message would work best to explain how you feel?

Which I-message would work best to get action taken on something you want or need?

Key Term

Paraphrasing

Paraphrasing is simply repeating back in your own words what the other person has said.

Examples: “It sounds like you’re saying that...”

“It seems like you’re...”

With a partner, take turns sharing what bothers each of you the most at work. Then paraphrase what your partner has said.

Benefits of Paraphrasing

- Paraphrasing helps everyone understand each other.
- Paraphrasing defuses difficult situations.

When would paraphrasing work well?

Key Term

Receiving Criticism — Three Techniques

F*ogging* is a response that avoids conflict and is especially useful when criticism is unclear or unjustified.

Fogging doesn't admit to fault and doesn't blame, either.

Examples: "You might have a point ..."

"I'll have to think about that ..."

"You might be right about that ..."

A*dmitting* means taking responsibility for something you truly did or said.

Examples: "You're right, I am late."

"That's true. I did handle that badly."

R*equesting* means asking for specific suggestions.
This technique works especially well after admitting.

Examples: "What suggestions do you have to help me improve?"

"How could I have handled this better?"

Key Term

Receiving Criticism Examples

Criticism	Response
Criticism given.	Three Techniques <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Fogging• Admitting• Requesting Information

Example:

Criticism	Response
"Your uniform looks terrible."	Fogging Response (Use if criticism is unclear/unfair) "You may have a point ..."
	Admitting Response (Use if criticism is accurate) "You're right, it does. Tomorrow it'll look better."
	Requesting Response (Use if criticism is accurate) "I know. What can I do to get these spots out?"

Activity

Receiving Criticism Activity — How to Handle Criticism

Which technique would work best if ...

- you're late to work? _____
- you're accused of being unfriendly to customers? _____
- an internal customer is unfairly taking out his/her frustrations on you? _____

Activity

Give an example of a difficult situation where you received criticism that was unclear or not fair. Trade with a partner for him/her to respond to using each type of response.

Criticism

Fogging Response

Admitting Response

Requesting Response

How effective are giving excuses and blaming others when being criticized?

Question

Questioning — Three Techniques

What Would You Do?

Tony received his first performance appraisal last week.
Expecting high ratings, Tony was upset to find only moderate scores.

What are Tony's choices for how to react?

What does Tony want?

What does Tony need to do to get what he wants?

Barbara's fifteen year old son Ricky is starting his sophomore year in high school.
Barbara wants to set a ten o'clock curfew for Ricky.

What are her choices for getting what she wants?

Key Term

The Five W's and How

What are the “5 Ws?”

[and _____]

Activity

Mindmapping Questions

Diagram or map the necessary questions you ask when making a purchase.

Mindmapping Activity

Using the mindmap create a plan to solve a workplace problem.

Key Term

Closed Question

- What is a closed question? _____
- Which of the 5 Ws and How create closed questions? _____

- When would you use a closed question? _____

Open Question

- What is an open question? _____
- Which of the 5 Ws and How create open questions? _____

- When would you use an open question? _____

Key Term

Questioning Activity

Your supervisor just wrote up one of your coworkers. You need some information to solve a problem, but now the supervisor seems angry with you.

What questions could you ask in this situation?

Nonverbal Communication

Body Language Signals

Highlight the body language that is generally yours.

Posture Slumped Shoulders forward Shifting often Chin down	Erect, but relaxed Shoulders straight Few shifts, comfortable Head straight or slight tilt	Erect, tense, rigid Shoulders back Jerky shifts, or planted in place Chin up or thrust forward
Gestures Fluttering hand movements Twisting motions Shoulder shrugs Frequent head nodding	Casual hand movements Relaxed hands Hands open, palms out Occasional head nodding	Chopping or jabbing hand movements Clenched hands, or pointing Sweeping arms Sharp, quick nods
Facial expressions Lifted eyebrows, pleading look, wide-eyed, rapid blinking Nervous or guilty smile Chewing lower lip Shows anger with averted eyes, blushing, guilty look, crying	Relaxed, thoughtful, caring or concerned look, few blinks Genuine smile Relaxed mouth Shows anger with serious look, slight flush of color	Furrowed brow, tight jaw, tense look, unblinking glare Patronizing or sarcastic smile Tight lips Shows anger with disapproving scowl, very firm mouth, bared teeth, extreme flush
Voice Quiet, soft, higher pitch Hesitations, uhs, ahs, stopping in "midstream" Nervous laughter Statements sound like questions with voice tone rising at the end	Resonant, firm, pleasant Smooth, even-flowing, comfortable delivery Laughter only with humor Voice tones stay even when making statement	Sarcastic laughter Statements sound like orders Insults Vulgarity Demeaning language Negative remarks

Which column is aggressive? Which is assertive? Which is passive?

What column contains most of your highlights?

Key Term

What Do Nonverbals Mean?

With a partner, choose three nonverbals below.

Partner 1 — demonstrate all three behaviors at once,

Partner 2 — interpret the meaning of the body language.

1. Nail biting _____
2. Arms crossed _____
3. Tapping fingers _____
4. Rolling eyes _____
5. Twirling hair _____
6. Slumping/Slouching _____
7. Avoiding eye contact _____
8. Nodding _____
9. Bored facial expression _____
10. Smirking _____
11. Sarcastic laughter _____
12. Shaky voice _____

Activity

Nonverbal Behavior Activity

With partner(s), role play a real, work-related problem.

Observers, what nonverbal behaviors did you observe?

Nonverbal Behaviors

- Tone of voice _____
- Facial expression _____
- Gestures _____
- Posture _____
- Eye-contact _____

What suggestions would you make for improving the nonverbal behavior?

Activity

Listening

Activity

Draw a picture of what listening looks like to you.

Listening and Learning Styles

Answer the following questions.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

What can visual and tactile learners do to get information?

Preview

Analyzing Listening

1. List the reasons or times when people do not listen.

2. Identify your listening blocks with (V), (N), (M), or (T).

- Visual distractions (V)
- Noise distractions (N)
- Movement distractions (M)
- Thoughts/Emotional distractions (T)

3. What are the consequences of not listening?

4. What are ways to overcome these listening blocks?

5. Give examples of the best listeners you know. Why?

Activity

Following Directions

Select the case study that matches your learning style.

Auditory Your supervisor gives you a two-page step-by-step list for how to do a task. What are your choices for getting the information?

Visual Your supervisor quickly tells you how to complete a task. What are your choices for getting the information?

Tactile Your supervisor gives you a manual for a new procedure. What are your choices for getting the information?

Problem Solving

Introduction

When a problem comes up, how do you deal with it?

What happens as a result?

Look below and choose the way that is most productive.

When things go wrong, people generally react in one of three ways.

1. They blame other people.
2. They spend a lot of time complaining/worrying about the problem and then hope that it goes away.
3. They face the problem and try to come up with a solution.

Source: Sharron Ferrett, Peak Performance, Irwin Mirror Press, 1994, P.219.

Activity

Problem Solving Activity

What problems in your work or personal life would you like to solve?

What are some reasons people don't solve their problems?

What are the costs of not solving problems?

Choose one problem from the list you wrote to answer the first question and use the steps on the following pages to solve it.

Activity

The Six Steps to Solve a Problem

1. State the problem

2. Brainstorm for different solutions

3. Evaluate consequences of each solution

Solution	Positive Consequences	Negatives Consequences

4. Choose a solution and make a decision

5. Plan and take action

The Performance Coaching Process

The fundamental rule in performance coaching is that the standards must be specific, clear, and agreed upon.

Identify the Need	The first step is to identify the need. What is the motivation to discuss performance? Is there a performance problem? Is it more appropriate to handle this in a career coaching session? Be specific in assessing the need.
Map Your Strategy	The second step involves your approach. Your strategy might include formal training, co-worker instruction, job restructuring, reassignment, etc.
Plan Your Coaching	Plan for your participation and for a meeting with the employee. How much time will you spend? How will progress be observed by you? What measures will you use for showing improvement?
Recommend the Actions	Meet with the employee. Present the situation and the facts. Allow the full expression of views, feelings, and concerns. Describe the strategy, plan, and recommended actions.
Obtain Agreement	Gain the employee's agreement on the strategy, plan, and recommended actions. Make sure any consequences are understood. Agreement is crucial.
View Their Performance	You must observe the employee's performance personally in order to be able to evaluate and coach appropriate to the plan and actions.
Evaluate	Using the agreed upon measures, evaluate progress.
Revise or Reward	Acknowledge the employee for all progress as soon as possible. Make revisions in your strategy or plan where necessary and implement with the employee's agreement.

The Career Coaching Process

AIM...CM

Assess	The career coaching process begins with employees learning as much about themselves as possible. What is their overall vision of their worklife and their contribution to the company? What skills have they developed that are useful to the organization? What is it that excites them and that they enjoy doing? What qualities do they possess? What is their style of work? What are their strengths, weaknesses, and shortcomings? There are many tools available to support people in this process all the way from sophisticated assessment systems to “do-it-yourself” books.
Investigate	The second element involves research. Has the person investigated and discovered what the needs, challenges and opportunities are in the company, department, or division?
Match	Have they matched their particular assessment of themselves with the needs, challenges and opportunities? Is there a match?
Choose	Given their assessment and research, and having found a match, have they chosen appropriate development targets of opportunity? These targets should be both short term (on the current job) and long term. Targets may be either positional (including lateral moves) or skill development.
Manage	Have they created and implemented a plan with specific actions and deadlines? The plan could include skills to develop, experience to gain, behavior and attitudes to modify, and support to enlist.

Key Term

How to Make Coaching Work

- Give feedback about behavior $\frac{3}{4}$ not personality.
- State specifically what you want $\frac{3}{4}$ not what you don't want.
- Use I-messages instead of You-messages to reduce defensiveness.
- Ask questions to get the employee to say what you want instead of lecturing.
- Paraphrase what the employee has said to ensure a thorough understanding.
- Give positive feedback for good performance.
- Give calm, thoughtful, constructive feedback for poor performance.
- Leave the employee with a sense of hope.

Others

Based on the Learning Pyramid, what would be the most effective way for a supervisor to make sure that all employees understand the suggestions above?

Activity

Learning Pyramid Activity

Select one of the six bulleted suggestions from the previous page.
With a partner, “teach” the group how to use that suggestion.

Be creative: role play, demonstrate, give examples,
use examples from group, or invent a new technique!

Case Study

Joe works for supervisor A, who likes Joe and wants to see him succeed. Joe is occasionally late to work and doesn't always do things according to hospital policy, but supervisor A believes that overall Joe is a good employee.

Recently Joe was promoted to a different department and now works for supervisor B. Supervisor B does not tolerate tardiness and operates strictly according to policy. Supervisor B feels that Joe is an ineffective worker and wants him out of the department.

What has caused Joe's current situation?

How can Joe's situation be solved?

How can this situation be avoided for other employees?

Activity

Putting It All Together

One participant volunteers to be the “supervisor”.

Other participants choose “roles” from jar.

Role Play

The “supervisor” conducts a typical departmental meeting.
Other participants play the roles they selected from the jar.

What Happened?

Did the “supervisor” conduct the meeting well?

Why or why not?

How did the supervisor address the problems or conflicts that came up during the meeting?

Did you notice anyone exhibiting assertive, aggressive, or passive behavior?

How?

Key Term

Three Ways to Receive Criticism

F*ogging* is a response that avoids conflict and is especially useful when criticism is unclear or unjustified.

Fogging doesn't admit to fault and doesn't blame, either.

Examples: "You may have a point ..."

"I'll have to think about that ..."

"You might be right about that ..."

A*dmitting* means taking responsibility for something you truly did or said.

Examples: "You're right, I am late."

"That's true. I did handle that badly."

R*equesting* means asking for specific suggestions.

This technique works especially well after admitting.

Examples: "What suggestions do you have to help me improve?"

"How could I have handled this better?"

Receiving Criticism — Techniques

Criticism	Response
Criticism given.	Three Techniques <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Fogging• Admitting• Requesting Information

Examples

Criticism	Response
"Your employee reports are terrible."	Fogging Response (Use if criticism is unclear/unfair) "You may have a point ..."
	Admitting Response (Use if criticism is accurate) "You're right, I was in a real hurry. Let me rework them."
	Requesting Response (Use if criticism is accurate) "How can I improve them?"

Activity

Practice Responding to Criticism

Give a criticism to your partner.

Partner responds using each of the three different techniques for receiving criticism.

Criticism

Fogging Response

Admitting Response

Requesting Response

Person who gave the criticism analyzes the responses.

Were the responses clear? _____

What needs improvement? _____

Tips

When receiving criticism:

Ask myself, "What do I need to do to improve this situation?"

(Avoid blaming or giving excuses.)

Both parties must be committed to cooperation and a positive outcome.
